

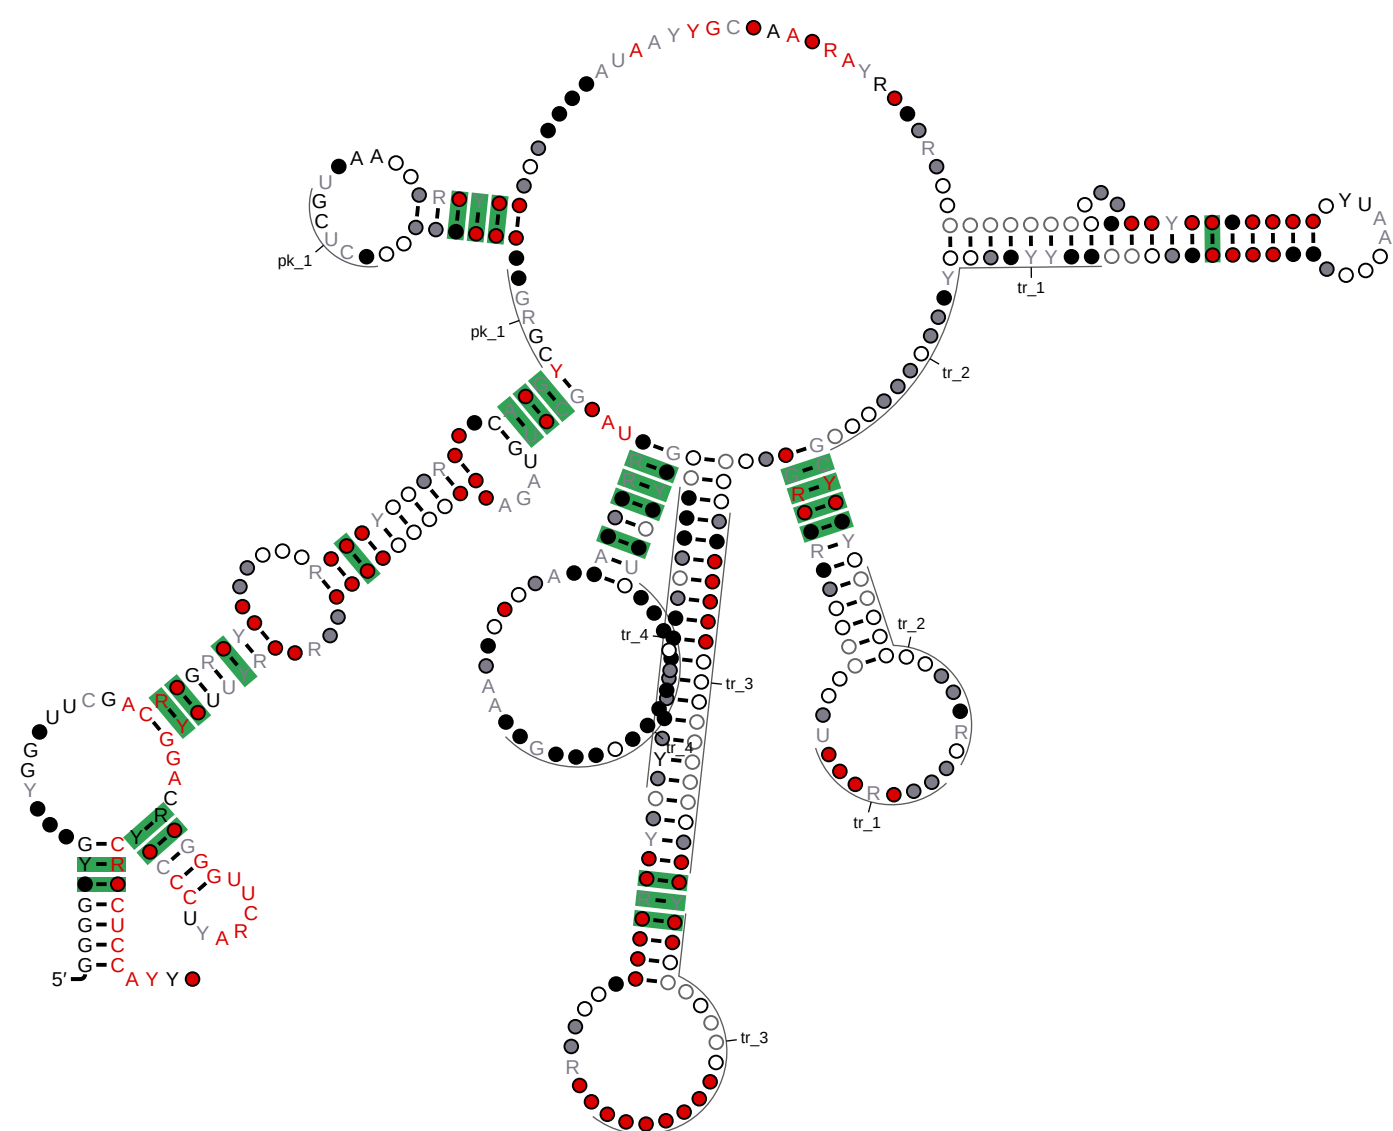

Diagram illustrating the inheritance of the Y chromosome from father to son. The father's sperm (Y) fertilizes the mother's egg (X) to form a male (XY).

Diagram illustrating a population structure with 10 rows and 2 columns of circles. The top row is labeled 'Y' and 'R'. The second row has black circles. The third row has grey circles and is highlighted with a green background. The remaining rows have white circles.